The Drama "The Heiress"

---

Synopsis of the Operetta "Marianne"

This story takes place in Alguara, a fictitious country in South America. It tells of the events surrounding the 21st birthday of the heroine, Marianne, who is inheriting the Golonda Emerald mines. Fortunately, and to the delight of her girl friends, several young, dashing, American engineers arrive just in time to be invited to her birthday party. Needless to say, Marianne and one of the engineers, Al Carter, are mutually attracted.

This love affair has scarcely begun when a greedy (perhaps even jealous) Alguaran banker, Ramón de Trava, less interested in Marianne than in her emeralds, attempts to come between the lovers and win Marianne (and her emeralds) for himself. Not hindered by principles or conscience, Ramon stoops to dishonest means, including blackmail, to achieve his ends. Thanks largely to Al's friend Johnny, Ramón's schemes are foiled, the lovers are reunited, and live happily ever after (or, at least, that would be a safe assumption).

THE STORY

The entire action of the play takes place in the front parlour of Doctor Sloper's house in Washington Square. The year is 1850. Doctor Sloper, a well-to-do doctor, lives with his daughter, Catherine and his sister, Lavinia Penniman. Since the death of his wife he has adopted a possessive and dominating attitude towards Catherine, a somewhat awkward girl who does not measure up to her father's expectations of her. To complicate matters Catherine falls in love with a young fortune-hunter, Morris Townshend. Her father sees through the suave blandishments of this young man and forbids an immediate marriage in the hopes that she may forget all about him as she accompanies the doctor on a six months' trip to Paris. While the doctor and Catherine are absent Morris Townshend makes the doctor's house his home. As Act 2 opens Morris in comfortable ease is playing a game of backgammon with the romantically-minded Mrs. Penniman.

ACT II.

Scene 1: An April night six months after Catherine and the doctor had left for Paris.

Scene 2: Two hours later.

Scene 4: A summer evening almost two years later.
